

Food folks pitch in to help Haiti

Folks in the hospitality business are generous by nature, and South Florida's chefs and restaurateurs are stepping up for victims of Haiti's earthquake:

- Monday through Feb. 7, diners at Sra. Martinez, Michy's, Michael's Genuine, Wish, Solea, Quattro, Eos, The Grill and The Restaurant at The Setai, La Marea, Jaguar, Talavera, Ortanique, Perricone's, Two Chefs, Joey's Italian Café, The Grill on the Alley, Red the Steakhouse and Lime Fresh Mexican Grill will be invited to add $1 or more to their tabs to benefit UNICEF efforts in Haiti.
- Sushisamba dromo, Kitchen 305, Café Prima Pasta, Lucky Strike, Morena and Maya, among others, are using the same method to raise funds for the American Red Cross.
- Haitian-born chef Ron Duprat of the Marriott Hollywood Beach is organizing Hearts for Haiti, in which chefs around the country will donate 10 percent of their Valentine's Day receipts to earthquake relief; www.chefronduprat.com.
- The South Beach Wine & Food Festival has announced that 100 percent of the gross advance ticket sales for its Fun and Fit as a Family event will go to the William J. Clinton Foundation's Haiti Earthquake Relief Fund.
- SoBe fest founder and director Lee Brian Schrager reports that a Feb. 24 dinner he organized at Tap Tap with acclaimed chef Daniel Boulud to benefit Partners in Health's Haitian relief efforts immediately sold out.
- Canyon Ranch Grill, 6801 Collins Ave., Miami Beach, is featuring Haitian dishes on its menu this week and next, with all the proceeds from their sale going to the Red Cross; 800-742-9000.